

Intimate Partner Violence and Sexual Coercion

Wednesday, April 21, 2010
8:30 am - 12:30 pm
Berkeley, CA

In This Training

This interactive training will explore the issues of intimate partner violence (IPV), including its definition, prevalence and how to assess for it. This training will also examine sexual coercion and strategies for assessment and effective counseling with teen clients.

By the end of this session, participants will be able to:

- identify factors that contribute to IPV;
- discuss characteristics of a healthy relationship;
- demonstrate counseling strategies for clients who are experiencing IPV and/or sexual coercion.

Who Should Attend

Staff who directly interact with clients, including clinicians, nurses, medical assistants, counselors and educators.

Trainer

La Rhonda Crosby-Johnson is a trainer and educational program consultant who has been working in the field of adolescent pregnancy prevention, health, violence prevention and reproductive health care for over 25 years. She has done state-wide training on intimate partner violence and also provides coaching to health and educational professionals. She is a certified integral (life) coach working with individuals and organizations.
